

Visual Communication Principles

Instructions: 1) After your professor assign you a team, click the boxes below to add a short definition on your own words, or an example to the design principles. 2) Use the videos and blogs embedded in the boxes to guide you.

↔ Team 1: Typography

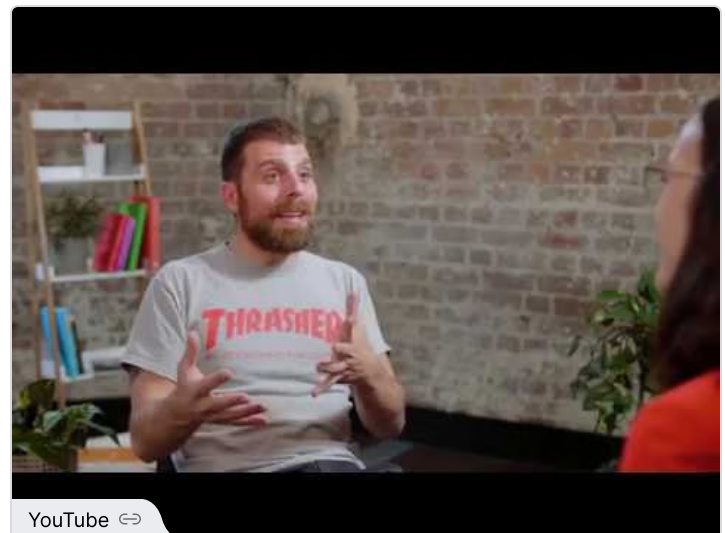

Typography can help to communicate the personality of a brand; serif can show a brand that has credibility, maybe classy, while sans-serif shows a fresher or maybe more informal personality. With this image comparing logos, you can see how different it feels with a slight change while preserving the identity: <https://cms-assets.tutsplus.com/cdn-cgi/image/width=1700/uploads/users/2056/posts/33548/image/19-08-08%20ART%20The%20Rise%20of%20the%20Sans%20Serif-1.jpg>

Team 5: Contrast

Write a short definition or provide an example.

Definition: Contrast is the use of different colours, sizes, shapes, or styles to make elements in a design stand out from one another.

A black shirt with white writing creates contrast because the white writing is easy to see against the black shirt.

Team 10: White Space

Write a short definition or provide an example

Whitespace means the empty space between characters, words, or lines in text/code.

Common examples of whitespace are:

- Space: Hello World
- Tab: Hello World (a tab creates a larger gap)
- New line:
Hello
World

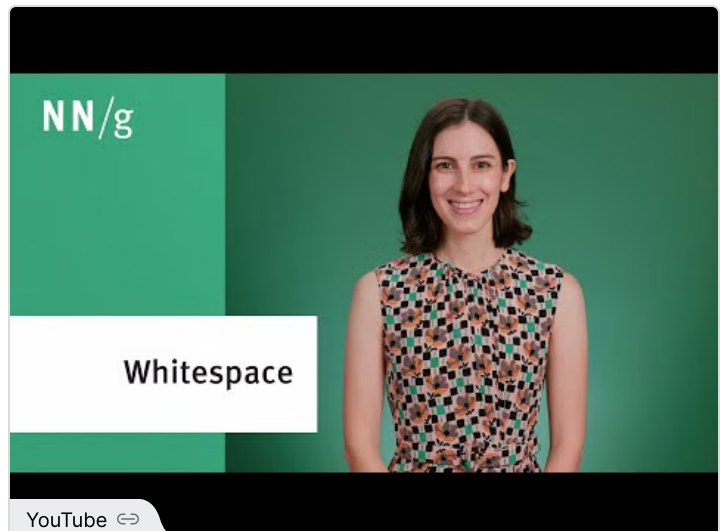

What is Whitespace?

Team 9: White Space

White space refers to the empty space on the website or webpage that enhances the navigation and design appeal for the users. It makes design look more organized and easy to navigate if used properly. In this video, there are three examples showing how usage of white space matters and it should be used in a balanced way - not too much and not too less.
